Acquilla Hall House
216 N. Hickory Avenue

private

This little house would be simply a typical late Victorian tenant house were it not for the sharp little front gable with its square window. The original house was two rooms up and down. The kitchen ell was added later.

An insurance agency now occupies the house.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This two bay, two and a half story, aluminum sided house is at 216 N. Hickory in the Town of Bel Air, Harford County, Maryland. Its gable roof is awkwardly broken on the front (east) elevation by a small front gable with a single pane square casement near the peak. A single room ell occupies the center in the rear (west) elevation. Beside that on the south elevation of the ell is a two story shed roof single bay addition. Next to that to the west is a single story shed roof addition. These slightly awkward additions are bathrooms. They date to the 1950's. The windows are 1/1 double hung sash, recent replacements. The windows in the main block are flanked by plastic shutters.

The entrance to the first floor office is in the south bay of the front (east) elevation, a glass over panel door. The front porch has a shed roof carried on stock turned posts. The entrance to the second story apartment is in the north elevation of the ell, up a single run of wooden steps, which rise parallel with that wall.

The interior is quite plain: two rooms, in the main block. Both rooms are now offices. Against the north wall of the south chamber is a deep cupboard of tongue and groove which probably occupies the site of the former staircase. The room in the ell is the kitchen. There are no fireplaces. A stove chimney shows in the south wall of the north chamber.

The woodwork throughout is entirely plain-

The upstairs apartment has two rooms, a bath and a kitchen.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

This small house, originally two rooms down and two rooms up, dates to the 1880's. It was built by Andrew Smallsbeck, probably in 1889. Smallsbeck, although not identified as a carpenter, bought several lots in Town, erected houses and then sold them immediately. He bought one lot from John Dallam in 1881 (43/170) and the other one from Col. Edwin Webster in May 1889 (63/329). He sold the property to Acquilla Hall in July 1889 (63/463) which suggests he had just built the house. The house passed to John Wesley Hall. In 1962 the N. M. Carroll Home for the Aged of the Methodist Church sued John Hall, and the trustee conveyed the property to the Carroll Home in 1963 (609/535), suggesting that the property was in return for institutional care. Two weeks later, the Carroll Home sold the property to Charles Blair (611/460). Blair sold it a couple of months later in March to Ralph and Clive Hendrix (614/188). The Hendrixes sold it to William C. Rhea in November (633/505). That makes four conveyances in 1963. The Rheas sold it to lawyer Patrick L. Sullivan, the present owner, in 1969 (826/387).

The house has the Sheckells Insurance Agency on the first floor and an apartment upstairs.
